

Email and picture from David Bell on 10th Aug 2009 about the Air Cadets side of Worcester II

David says :-

I quote from Captain Steele.

.....an obsolete Atlas Armstrong dual control machine, parked in the old conservatory of Ingress Abbey. which served as its hangar. Of course it had never flown; in fact the air cadet class had taken down the engine and it seemed unlikely they would ever get it assembled again. Only last time he had looked at the plane he had found a peahen's egg in the rear fuselage. It was never intended to fly.....

Attached is a pic of same aeroplane.

http://www.aviastar.org/air/england/arm\_atlas.php